

Tommy Harris

Tommy plays the recurring role of 'Seánie Duggan' in "RESISTANCE" which airs on RTE 1 Television at 9.30pm on Sundays.

In post production is Dublin writer and director Neil Saul's short film "THE TASK" in which Tommy plays the lead role.

His screen credits also include the part of 'Big Mouth' in Peter Foott's multi-award winning debut feature film "THE YOUNG OFFENDERS", the lead role in Whackala's short film "REFUGEE" directed by Leticia Agudo, 'Eric' in Ian Ruby's feature film "DEAD DOGS", and the part of 'Harry' in the short film "THIS TIME TOMORROW".

Tommy's was cast in a 2-part reading of "MOURNING BECOMES ELECTRA" which ran at this year's Eugene O'Neill International Festival of Theatre in New Ross which was directed by Ben Barnes.

His theatre credits include the role of young 'Pa' in Patrick Talbot Productions' staging of Shane Casey's comedy play "WET PAINT" (Cork's Everyman Theatre), 'Micke' in "LET THE RIGHT ONE IN" (Dublin's Abbey Theatre) directed by Tony and Olivier award-winning director John Tiffany, the role of 'him' in Farna's staging of Timothy O'Mahoney's play "DANCING DOGS" (Galway Theatre Festival), 'Richard Kent' in Lantern Productions staging of "THOMAS KENT - 1916 REBEL" which having toured various venues around County Cork played in Cork's Everyman Theatre. This followed his performance in the Everyman's production of "JUNO AND THE PAYCOCK" in which he played 'Johnny Boyle', directed by Ger Fitzgibbon.
