
Michael O'Sullivan

Michael's screen credits include the supporting role of George Orme O'Malley in Colm Bairread's award-winning docudrama 'The Maamtrasna Murders', the lead role in the IFTA-nominated 'Eireville' for director James Finlan, Quinn in 'Inion an Fhiaclora' directed by Jacqueline O'Neill, supporting roles in 'Some Mother's Son', 'Fallout' and 'Sean' for RTE Television and in 'The Running Mate' for TG4.

Theatre wise Michael played the lead role of 'Father Tim Farley' in the first Irish revival of 'MASS APPEAL' which was directed by its author Bill C. Davis and toured nationwide as did Frank Harte's play 'LANGUAGE OF THE MUTE' in which Michael played 'Donie'.

Height: 5' 10" (177cm)

Principal Age Range: 60 plus

Build: Average

Hair: Grey

Eyes: Blue

Skills

Accents: Irish-Southern*, Northern Irish, Belfast, Cork, Dublin, English RP*, Northern English, Scottish, American-Southern States, American-Standard, East European, French

Languages: Irish (Fluent)
